World's Champion Motor Car in West Englewood

N. & N. Motor Sales Company Contracted Elgin Six

In addition to the Overland 4 and Willy's Knight, the Elgin 6 has been selected by our local distributors. The Elgin 6 is a very fine medium priced 6-cylinder car and therefore in its proper location. She is a Chicago made product, in the near town of Argo. The Elgin 6 is playing a big role in the automobile industry, and is striving in competition with America's foremost motor cars. She has proven to be the 6 cylinder car of the day on every occasion, as being mentioned in the leading newspapers. In performance she is a wonder. The body styles are the latest in automobile design. Our local distributors, the N. & N. Co., have reason to be proud of their latest choice. They now have a splendid combination of cars—the Overland 4 at $1,695; Elgin, $1,735; the Willys Knight, $2,382.

Sixty-third and Wood is West Englewood's automobile center and rumored to be the south side's busiest. You'll find cars all over, on the sidewalks, street, in the yard, in fact wherever they see an opportunity to place one. We may look forward to the finest automobile establishment on the south side as soon as building conditions permit. That's what both N's told us. All right, go to it! More power to West Englewood and to the N. & N. Motor Sales Co.

Cameron-Taylor

One of the June weddings that came as a complete surprise was that of Mr. Duncan Cameron of 4749 Calumet Ave., and Miss Alice Taylor, of 6356 Marshfield Ave., daughter of Mrs. J. J. Taylor. They were married at the home of Rev. C. C. Cox, in the presence of a few of the immediate friends and relatives Wednesday, June 16th, at 4:30. The happy couple left immediately for Starved Rock and will return in a few days, being at home to their many friends at 4731 Lake Park Ave. The groom is a young man of sterling qualities and business ability, being at present in business at 47th and Calumet. The bride was reared in this community and is a young lady of talent and ability that will enable her to be a helpmeet indeed to the man of her choice.

McCormac-Brown

A wedding that has been looked forward to with a great deal of interest was that of Mr. David McCormac and Miss Lola Alla Brown, which took place at the home of the bride, 1559 E. 61st St., Wednesday, June 16th, at 8:30.

To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Miss Sadie McCormac, the bridal party entered the parlor. Mr. James H. Sweet acting as best man. Miss Ruth McCormac was bridesmaid and wore a gown of pink Georgette and carried pink sweet peas. The bride entered upon the arm of her father and was presented at the altar by him. She was beautifully gowned in white Georgette and carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

The ceremony took place in the sun room, which was tastily decorated with palms, ferns and roses. Rev. Clinton C. Cox read the services, using the impressive ring service. Only the immediate relatives were present.

After the service the bride and groom led the way to the dining room where a delightful three course wedding supper was served. They were the recipients of many beautiful presents, which were tokens of the esteem in which both are held. The groom is general foreman of Swift's wool department and received from his fellow-workers a gift attesting their esteem of him.

The bride and groom left for a wedding trip to the Dells of Wisconsin, and will be at home to their many friends at 5943 Wood St. after July 17.

Mother and Son Become Partners in the Business World

On the ninth anniversary of her successful business career in Englewood, gives cause why Mrs. Anna Stepanek, the proprietress, should be more proud than ever for on this occasion she finds much pleasure in announcing that her son George, is a full fledged partner with her and who has just opened one of the prettiest corsetiere shops in the city, centrally located at 79th and Halsted Sts. This is in one of the first class neighborhoods on the south side. It is elaborately furnished, heavily stocked and one only needs to pay a visit to this handsome store to know it is in such capable hands as Mrs. Stepanek and her son, whom she has trained in the business since he was a youngster. Through years of shrewd buying and paying careful attention to the business ways of his mother gives George the opportunity of knowing this business thoroughly, and his new store will no doubt enjoy the patronage of the entire community from the start be successful and he and his mother will journey on through life as "Successful Business Partners."

Oh! Those Silos?

Having received a number of inquiries requesting information as to the purpose of the six silos in Reiner's coal yard, and having heard all sorts of rumors as to their purpose, including the talk that they were intended for fermentation tanks, your correspondent was instructed to hunt up John Reiner and interview him in the matter. John Reiner, however, proved very evasive and the only statement he would make was to the effect that the plant would be in operation in about four or five weeks, and that he was going to set aside one day on which the public would be invited to view the plant at close range. On this day due notice of which will be given in these columns, he will guide all those who accept his invitation to the top of the silos and show them the city from up in the air. He also intimated that there would be refreshments served up there, but would not commit himself as to whether these refreshments were going to be hootch made in the silos. We note that there is only a ladder going up on the inside of the silos, so we do not know whether the invitations will include the ladies or not. Watch the Merchants Telegram for the opening date.

Tom Scanlan has acquired a new hobby; he's breeding butterflies. Wouldn't it look comical to see Tom chasing down the street with a net, in quest of a new specimen?

The Gramms celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary last Thursday evening with a little gathering, which was attended to by friends, neighbors and relatives. After supper they all repaired to the basement, where many a sole was worn out dancing on the cement floor, but the good time they all had was worth a new pair of soles any day.

Attorney Joe Sullivan's oldest boy was run over by an automobile in front of his home one evening last week. While he was painfully injured, we are pleased to report that the injuries were not serious.

Our new neighbor, Mr. Jans, is improving his home with a screened porch. Dick Brown, too, is housing in his back porch, which he started last fall, but before he could get it completed and the windows fitted in it started to get warm, so he decided to wait a little longer and then put in screens. All spring, however, he has been too busy to make screens, so now he thinks he will wait until fall and then put in the windows.

There is really only one thing wrong with Merchants Telegram "For Sale" want ads, and that is they bring too many buyers for what you want to sell. If you have something you want to sell and don't mind having a lot of people coming to your home to buy it, phone your ad in to Peter Kramer, Prospect 1673.

St. Basil's school children won fourteen scholarships during the term just expired. This means that they won the most scholarships of any school in the city. Are we proud of West Englewood's children? We'll say we are.

Be prepared to fight the insects and blights in your garden. A package of Corona Dry a package of sulphur, tobacco dust and bordeux will last you all year. Sisters, so alike you seem
When you lie sleeping side by side;
Yet, waking, one could scarcely dream
You sisters are: a gulf so wide
Your two sweet natures lies between.

The Call

I can smell the moisty breezes, and
the birds are singing' free—
There's a campin'-ground a-callin', I
can hear it callin' me;
Spring is liftin' o'er the hilltops and
the zephyrs seem to say:
"Come you back, you child o' Nature,
back to Vagabondia!
Back to Vagabondia.
Where the breezes laugh and play;
Can't you see the waves of Aera dance
and toss themselves to spray?
Back to Vagabondia.
Where a grown-up child can play.
And the dawn comes up a promise o'er
the waves at break o' day!"

I can see the camp-fire flicker, see the smoke rise through the trees;
I can see the gleamin' moonlight as it
filters through the leaves;
I can hear the still night-voices, and
their chorus seems to say:
"Come you back, you child o' Nature,
back to Vagabondia!
Back to Vagabondia . . ."

I can hear the water lappin' as it
beats against the shore,
I can hear the tent-flap flappin' as the
breeze comes in the door;
And the water, and the tent-flap, and
the night-wind seem to say:
"Come you back, you child o' Nature,
back to Vagabondia!
Back to Vagabondia . . ."

I can hear my banjo tummin', like a
thread o' silver sound,
And its song is, "Are you comin'?" Oh,
the Spring has come around,
And my campin'-ground is callin', and it's there that I would be,
On the shores o' blue Lake Aera,
where the winds are playing free!
Back at Vagabondia,
Where the breezes laugh and play,
And the tumblin' waves of Aera dance
and toss themselves to spray!
Back at Vagabondia.
Where a grown-up child can play,
And the sun goes down a glory o'er
the hills at close o' day!

ENGINES AND PEOPLE

Rev. C. C. Cox

I saw two doubleheader engines one day that reminded me of the way some people go along in life. The first engines I saw were plodding along. The one in front was pulling the other one along. The one behind had its bell ringing. Here is the way many a man and wife go along through life. The husband goes working along and about all the help he gets from his wife is that she rings the bell, that is, she talks, goes about in society. He pulls the load and she rings the bell. And it is just as true of the wife many times. She stays within four narrow walls, cooks, sews, patches, waits on the children at night and she has a man who thinks her work is such, and he goes out evenings ringing the bell of popularity and winning ways. Just remember it is not always the engine ringing the bell that is pulling the load, nor is it that one with those sweet winning ways and that goes about ringing the bell of popularity that is pulling the load in the home.

On another occasion I saw one of these doubleheaders rushing down the track. Both had on full steam and were traveling along at a good speed, but alas, one of the engines was traveling backwards. It looked wrong, it was not impressive. I like to see engines that are traveling together, facing the same direction. But just as true of people. How many are traveling with their faces in opposite directions? How many times do the married people find this to be their condition. Both are very desirous of getting along, but one is looking back to mistakes, blots and errors of the past, the other faces the future. Again we find the home divided on the things of life. One wants to lay up money, the other one wants to give the children an education, music, travel. It's the old fact of two engines facing opposite directions.

The railroad company place their engines together for the long trips and heavy loads and every man and wife should do the same. They have the most sacred cargo and its a long haul over grades of poverty and around curves of loss. Then let them pull together and not one while the other rings the bell and let them face the future. Together travel in the same direction, leave the past alone.

Walter C. Dettmann is the leader so far this month for Jordan & Company. William C. Malmer is also one of the leaders. Peter Baum is back from Kansas City and is on the job again. We expect him to cut a wide path for himself in sales. Max Neudorfer is selling quite a few places nowadays. William T. Fleming is the leading salesman of Jordan & Company so far this year. He personally has sold $135,000 worth of real estate and this is some record for five and a half months when you consider that all property is reasonably priced.

J. C. Sharp has been induced by our leading merchants to stay in Chicago. We are all glad to hear this good news.

It is reported that J. J. Weiss, the druggist, will soon take over a line of phonographs for the World Phonograph Company.

The Porter Who Became a Big Hotel Owner

His Views on Making Good in Business

Twelve years ago Harry J. Choucherie was just one of the many porters slinging trunks about the baggage room of the aristocratic Belmont Hotel, New York, at a monthly remuneration of twenty-five dollars. Today, in addition to holding down the position of Manager of Transportation at the Hotel McAlpin, New York, the former porter owns his own hotel in the metropolis, having just leased the Colonial at a rental of a quarter of a million dollars for the term of fifteen years. Work, a definite aim, thrift, and initiative were the factors instrumental in the rapid rise of this plutocratic head porter—in many ways the most interesting and unique aristocratic menial known to Broadway.

Choucherie, as a matter of fact, really long since passed from the ranks of a menial. "Tips" have been the all important factor in the rise to wealth of other porters, bellhops, and waiters, but they have been only a stepping stone in the upward climb of this new member of Father Knickerbocker's family of hotel owners. Six years ago when he assumed the position of head porter, or Manager of Transportation as he had the berth rechristened, he revolutionized the porter's job by stipulating that the head of that department was to work strictly on a salary basis, waiving all privileges exacted formerly by the czar of the baggage room.

Choucherie is an American, but narrowly missed being born under the tri-color of France. He comes naturally by his adaptability and liking for the hotel business as his father, Henri, has been in that line of work since he first came to this country, following his discharge from the French army after the Franco-Prussian War.

The young hotel man takes his success modestly. He is very popular among his subordinates, and when one of the McAlpin porters was asked where the Manager of Transportation could be found he led the way to a small office, saying, "He's in there, and believe me, a better boss can't be found." In telling of his early work and plans, Choucherie emphasized the fact that what he had accomplished any other man could, if he was willing to begin at the bottom, work hard, and stick to it. And he says:

"I believe a man can be whatever he wants to be. That is along the line of his abilities of course. I couldn't be President of the United States, nor president of a bank, perhaps—but I have succeeded in being what I want to be. A man should determine on what he is best fitted for and then go ahead with that particular end in view. Things will not come of their own free will, but work, study, thrift, and the ability to keep your eyes open will act as a magnet in drawing them your way.

"Yes, I'm studying all of the time. Getting the theory of the hotel business as well as the practical side. I don't intend to stop with ownership of the Colonial Hotel. That is only one step in the reaching of my goal. The Colonial Hotel is not exactly new and it is pretty well 'uptown,' but like all other hotels in New York it has been well filled continuously for the last few years, and I intend to make it bigger and better than it has been before. In fact I hope to make such a success of it that I'm almost positive the Astor Estate, which owns my property, will consent to build a new mammoth down-town hotel 'uptown' and give me the management of it.

"In regards to my policy decided upon six years ago of not receiving 'tips' I don't think that I made a mistake. Once you have capital, money can be made much faster in business and in greater lumps."

"The Lady" Makes Good

They Laughed First—But Not After "She" Became Boss

It was in the early summer of 1906. I was employed in an office of a large business house in the down-town section of New York in a clerical position, along with fifty or sixty others, men and women.

I was just out of college and sought to enter upon a business career, and I had condescended to accept a small salary to show the "Boss" how good I was. I was "good" in a physical sense—as an athlete. At college I had won any number of races and established a record. I was generally heralded as a champion, and in those days I thought most everybody had heard of my reputation; but outside of my circle of friends I did not seem to impress anyone that I was an athletic marvel.

I suppose this was because I was naturally of a retiring disposition. I could read a person and deceive them at the same time. They would think they were understanding me and my actions, but they were wrong—I was merely acting. I had, during my college days, taken part in amateur theatricals, making up as a female impersonator, and I put this talent into use at once. As long as I was credited with being effeminate, I would suit the action to the word. If I should be called Claudie, Ferdie or Archibald, or if they regarded me as a "Lady," I could certainly act it. I would always manage to answer them in a way that would convince them they were right.

My entry or engagement with the firm of Smith, Jones & Company seemed to turn the office into a sort of hippodrome for the company's employes, as they did not know whether they had a musical comedy star or a chorus girl in their midst. The "girls" were duly impressed, and I, too, fancied I was going to be entertained. I gave the office force the impression that I had been an actor, not so much by what I said as what I did. Often the girls would ask what part I had played.

The "fellows" in the office got hold of the story and asked me if I ever played with Lillian Russell. Of course I said no, but that she often came to the house, that I preferred holding some young damsel, like Mary Pickford, on my knee. You see I had an eye for beauty—and young things, and it was not long before I had selected the manager's best girl for my own; playing the "Boss" stenographer for second place.

I was getting in pretty deep. The manager, Mr. Betts, regarded me as a mere comptometer—not anything more and nothing less. You can imagine his indignation and surprise when one of the "crew" gave him the information that the "Lady" had his girl out the night before—though to arrive at the exact status—it was I who was out; out an X for the feed Mary packed in. I was no philanthropist, so I was soon cured.

Some of the girls were interested in getting up an entertainment and had asked me to take part, I said I would, right up to the time of the performance; and then sent my regrets—also word that my sister Nora would take the number in my stead. But I went just the same—as my sister, Nora.

And "Nora" made a hit with her dancing, especially with one fellow I had singled out, because he was so absurd—and because he had been one of those most active in trying to ridicule me, a fellow named John Pape; also known by the nickname, "Boob."

I told John the "Boob" that my brother had often mentioned him to me and I had him docile as a lamb. I lead him on, and promised to be his "steady." I permitted him to take me home and to kiss me. I sure had him guessing.

At the office the next morning he condescended to say "Good Morning" instead of the usual "Hello, Lady." I was so pleased with my own success the night before, that I told one of the girls, Helen. As I returned from lunch, John confronted me, with blood in his eye, and said—"Do you know what you are?" I smiled and replied, "Yes." He said, "I can lick you and I am going to do it."

The fellow had prided himself on his strength, and as he said, "I can lick you," he made a pass—started a blow—and stepped forward, which necessitated my stepping back. In fact, I made several steps backward until I knew he had spent his momentum but not his wrath, and then I stepped in and put over as neat a knockout punch as was ever delivered. When he came to his senses he was in the wash room—and wanted to know who dropped the safe on him. Later in the afternoon he said, "I'll get you." I said, "All right, but you know now that I am no 'Lady'," which was greeted with a roar of laughter from the other employees.

A few days later the Company held its annual picnic. We were to sail down the bay to Staten Island, and then hold a number of contests, including a one hundred yard dash for men and a sixty yard dash for girls. Several employees suggested that I run with the women. Five men lined up for the start of the men's race, J. Pape, our dethroned hero; Rollo Velvet, fat and wealthy; Harry Golf, a fresh air crank; Issy Blowsky, who did all the talking for the crowd, and myself. They all gave me the laugh. As we were getting into position for the start of the one hundred yard dash, Mr. Betts stepped out of the crowd and said to John, "Now, Jack, you can even up that score." "I'll bet you a hundred he doesn't," I retorted. Mr. Betts turned to me and said, "Where are you going to get a hundred dollars?"

"From the bank," I said (I didn't have a cent in the bank—my father had contributed to my support up to this time), but Mr. Betts said, "So you don't carry that much with you at one time, eh?—well, I'll bet you fifty." As he spoke Mr. Madden (the "Boss," with his niece, Ida, hanging on his arm) stepped forward and said, "I'll cover it for Norton." Mr. Betts was quite taken back, but the bet stood, and I won—by five yards.

(To be continued.)

At the present rate of increase in the consumption of native lumber in New Zealand it is estimated that the supply of standing timber will last not more than 30 years.

Sweet Potato.

It is not known certainly who introduced the sweet potato plant or when. Some authorities believe it to be of East Indian origin, but others more likely hold that it was a native of tropical America.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Genuine Pocahontas Coal will again be a Scarce Article This Year, due to the heavy foreign demand for this grade of coal, which class of business nets the Pocahontas operators a greater return for their coal, very little Pocahontas will be shipped to our city.

We expect a certain tonnage of Pocahontas during the summer months, but the amount we will receive is enitrely problematical. We will accept orders for Pocahontas from our regular customers, subject to our receiving the coal from the mines, at our price in effect at time of delivery.

Pocahontas coal will be very high in price ($10.00 per ton in load lots is the present price).

Our "Christopher" coal will make a splendid substitution for Pocahontas coal, not alone from the standpoint of fuel economy, but a greater assurance of delivery as well, which at the present time is a very important factor.

CHRISTOPHER COAL — FIRST IN AMERICA

Prices for "Christopher Coal" for June Delivery are as Follows:

6-in. Lump, per ton, in load lots	$8.00
Egg (furnace size), per ton, in load lots	8.00
Nut, per ton, in load lots	8.00
Mine Run, per ton, in load lots	7.50

And last, but most important, remember that all prices on coal advance each month and by next winter will be very high. So don't be foolish and delay placing your order. Call at our office or phone us today.

We Sell Your Property in a Way That Pleases

A real estate firm is fundamentally a commercial house of service. This not only involves the listing and quick sale of property at a fair price, but also the intelligent handling of the legal and other important details of your transaction so that it is properly closed. THIS WE DO, and our patrons leave us with the knowledge that their transaction has been satisfactorily completed, with no worry or inconvenience of unsolved problems to be adjusted later in the event of resale.

We invite you to use our service.
